Resolutions to be made on Islamic New Year

By Afnan Mahmood

What is the first thing that comes to your mind when you hear Islamic New Year? Another holiday? Another day to sleep? Another day out with family and friends? But it is much more than a day without lectures?

Our year begins with a sacrifice (migration of the prophets) and ends with a sacrifice (migration to Mecca), not from someone's birthday, some kings or rulers orders, but from the foundation of the Islamic community, on unity we begin!

With the sighting of the new moon, the Islamic New Year is ushered in, observed on the first day of the month MUHARRAM. New Year's Day is used to remind Muslims of the Hijra or migration, of Prophet Muhammad(PBH) from Mecca to Medina. It is a known fact that the actual migration did not take place on the first day of Muharram. It probably took place in the third Islamic month. The Islamic calendar itself was instituted after the actual migration. As a result of the association of the Islamic calendar with Hijra, New Year's Day is an important occasion to remember the significance of the Prophet's migration.

As Muslims you should constantly be assessing your lives and setting goals and making resolutions, rather than waiting for special days during the year to perform the exercise.

Leading psychologists suggest a few ways to achieve success

- self-evaluation
- focused action
- using time wisely
- behavioral change
- clarity of vision

So, start the change today – take the time to know yourself better – identify your weaknesses and commit to eliminate them. Assess your strengths and use them for meaningful hobbies. All in all, invest the effort to board on a personal transformation that can help you, your families, the world around you and can make your relationship with your Creator even stronger. Because if you don't take the step, who will?
